DETAILED ACTIONDouble Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 16-23 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over:

claims 1-27 of U.S. Patent No. 6,685,706

claims 1-15 of U.S. Patent No. 6,648,890

claims 1-5 of U.S. Patent No. 6,511,481

claims 1-24 of U.S. Patent No. 6,348,053

claims 1-6 of U.S. Patent No. 5,893,850

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the difference between the claims of the pending application and the claims of the patents lies in the fact that the patent claims include more elements and are thus more specific. Thus, the invention is in effect a "species" of the "generic" invention. It has been held that the generic invention is "anticipated" by the "species." See In re Goodman, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 16-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Sander et al (US Patent 5,720,753).

Sander et al disclose a device (Figures 1-12) comprising: an elongate tubular body (100', Figure 7A) having a proximal end (left side) and a distal end (right side); the tubular body having an annular ridge retention member (130); a distal anchor having two axial strips (115', Figure 7A) moveable from an axial orientation to an inclined orientation; a proximal anchor (radially extending head portion of 100'); an elongate pin (203', Figure 8 or 200'', Figure 10) moveable within the tubular body (100') in a proximal direction relative to the tubular body; the pin having radially inwardly ramped retention members (230), the ramps having annular ridges at the peaks of the ramps.
